

Connect to End COVID-19 in Pregnant Persons

When we're pregnant we have important decisions to make.

Some of those decisions are about COVID-19.

Social workers are respected, trusted messengers.

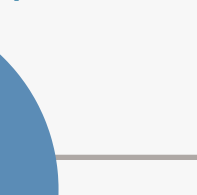

To make informed decisions, we need credible information.

We provide unbiased, patient-centered support.

We can empower people to be self-advocates.

What we do now has a lasting impact.

Parents and pregnant people have important decisions to make about COVID-19 vaccinations.

Perinatal social workers play an important role in protecting our pregnant clients and their babies from COVID-19 infection.

We are in a unique position to promote vaccine access, confidence, and uptake – particularly among those who are most vulnerable but who may be vaccine hesitant.
